The Speed Bug

The speed bug he is on his way
And screeching as he flies,
And he has surely put to shame
The spectre of the skies.

You see a spark in the distance,
And then you hear a roar,
And by the time you've glanced about
The thing's a speck once more.

He whizzes by like an arrow
And is gone in the space of a breath
He scorns any warning of danger
And laughs in the presence of death.

When you are out walking or riding
Be guarded against surprise,
Or some day he's bound to get you—
This bug with the goggle eyes.

He is no respecter of persons
He don't care a whoop for your soul
And the only thing that will stop him
Is a sturdy telegraph pole.

Oh, he's a demon, this speed bug,
If he hits you you'll never arise,
And he will shout as he rushes onward
A hurrah for the next that dies.

Hatchery Busy

The Mission Hatchery is a most interesting hive of industry these days, what with receiving eggs, tending incubators and chicks and shipping quantities of the downy scratchers daily.

With the completion of the new hatching building, Mr. Ellison now has a plant of one hundred 540-egg incubators going full capacity. That means over 50,000 chicks per round of the plant.

Mr. Ellison is shipping these day old chicks all over the west, many of them going to Nevada, Idaho and Utah.

War--Like?

E. H. Zion, the well known local attorney and member of the Board of Education, is in a quandry. He doesn't know whether he has been selected for a generalship in the United States army or whether he is a candidate for trench digging.

Yesterday when Zion opened his morning mail, he was confronted by a document from the Columbia University of New York City. The communication was signed by Frank D. Fackenthal, secretary of the institution and informed Zion that the authorities of the university were gathering statistics on all members of the alumni and student body in case of need for the federal army.

Zion, who is a graduate of the Columbia University, was asked if he would go to war, and other questions, tending to secure apparently the number of men the United States can depend upon in case of emergency.

It is understood that all of the big universities and many corporations are issuing similar communications. The questions asked include: whether or not previous military training; opinion of war and whether or not the recipient would go to war.—Modesto Morning Herald.

Enjoyable Course

The third and last of the Epworth League course of entertainments was given Friday evening at the Methodist church.

The program was furnished by Oakland talent. Mrs. Hattie R. Bradner, gave several readings, in a very simple and charming style.

Miss Lillian Simonsen, a piano soloist gave several numbers that showed great skill in execution and technique, and she also accompanied Mr. Albert H. Piepenberg's songs. The latter gentleman has a pleasing baritone voice.

Mr. Edward Bradner gave a lecture on "Naming the Baby," a combination of humor and seriousness.

Miss Ruth Lloyd's violin obligatos to the vocal solos added much to their effect.

They Are Off

Sunday, 2:30 p. m. at Los Gatos High school grounds, a battle for supremacy will be waged that promises to put the great European conflict in the back ground.

Our "Athletics" will be in very good shape and it is hoped that the usual big crowd will follow the boys and help "Yell" them to victory. Billy Paull will do the heaving. Martinelli, catcher; "Busher" Pierce on first; Gaines at second; Purdy, short stop; McKenzie, 3rd base; Oliver l. f.; Alexander, c. f.; and Bydekarken r. f.

Any one going over in machines will do the club a great favor by transporting as many players as possible.

CALIFORNIA RICE WEEK---
March 10 to 24

We have had a Prune Week, and we are now to have a California Rice Week. The object of these various "weeks", of course, is to advertise the merits of our home products.

The sale of California Rice has advanced wonderfully of late. To those housekeepers who are making serious attempts to combat high living costs, rice at five cents a pound is like an oasis in the desert.

Those who are still eating rice in the old-fashioned way with milk and sugar, are not yet thoroughly civilized, says an authority. The proper way to use this food is as a vegetable, along with your meat and other things.

For the sake of a good cause, eat an extra amount of rice next week. 5c a lb.

Have you used Rice Pancake Flour?—if not, you are missing something good. 20c a package.

Those folks who have been clamoring for some more of that good Horse Radish had better come in while the new supply lasts. Yes, it's the real stuff. 10c.

ORIGIN OF FAMILIAR PHRASE

How "Swinging Round the Circle" Gained Its Place in American Politics.

"As I go round the circle," uttered by President Johnson in a speech in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1866, was the origin of the familiar phrase of today, "swinging round the circle," as applied to the campaign tours of presidents. It was David Locke, the Petroleum V. Nasby of the Toledo Blade, who converted the words of Johnson into the "Swinging Around the Circle" slogan.

Andrew Johnson was in many respects a remarkable man, born and reared in illiteracy, President Johnson's state papers are said to be among the ablest executive documents now on file at Washington. "Yet," says T. R. Burton in his life of John Sherman, "Johnson's first message to congress, in December, 1865, was written by George Bancroft, and the original manuscript is at the Library of Congress.

It was on August 24, 1866, that President Johnson, with Secretary Seward, General Grant and Admiral Farragut, left Washington for a tour through the middle western states.

The ostensible object of the trip was a participation in the dedication of a monument to Stephen A. Douglas at Chicago on September 6.

But the outing was plainly an electioneering movement on the part of the president, for the purpose of making votes for "my policy" in the coming fall election.

At all the principal cities along the route through Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio, the president was received by a majority of those present at the different outdoor receptions, with the respect due his office.

If the president, in his speeches, had shown some degree of moderation and dignity in his language, the history of this notable presidential journey would not have been written in words of denunciation.

But Mr. Johnson did not try to conceal either his prejudice or his temper. From New York to St. Louis the president petulantly showed his opposition to the prevailing tone of public opinion throughout the northern states at the time, bandied epithets with the crowd, and "exalted himself at every opportunity." Secretary Seward also made some speeches. But Grant and Farragut, although frequently called for, did not utter a word. Grant was said to be thoroughly disgusted with the president and rode in other cars when he could do so.

"I felt," said Grant afterward, "that it was like listening to a man at his own funeral."

Although President Johnson made many speeches, it was said that not even once did he pronounce the name of "Lincoln" in this entire trip. At Cleveland, on September 3, the president did say that he "was placed on a ticket with a distinguished individual, who is now no more."

In the same speech occurred his reference to the "circle."

The Yankee in Mexico.

Mexican politeness, like Spanish politeness, is of the perfervid kind. Thus, one of the flowers of speech which the law of courtesy commands a Mexican host to use when he welcomes a guest is a phrase to the effect that his "humble house" belongs not to himself at all but wholly to his guest, and that the latter may do with it what he will.

Once this phrase cost a Mexican some worry. He met an enterprising Yankee, who was in Mexico drumming up business, and, inviting him to his home, told him that the house and all its belongings were his.

And the guest took the host at his word. He had his baggage moved from the hotel to the Mexican's mansion, proceeded to occupy that mansion as his own, and after a few days had passed generously notified the bewildered Mexican gentleman that the latter might remain in the house for a reasonable length of time, a couple of weeks, perhaps, until he—the Mexican gentleman—had found a new dwelling to his liking. And—impossibly, but it happened—it took legal proceedings to oust the Yankee usurper from the premises of the Mexican caballero, who may surely be called a martyr to his national virtue of civility.

World's Oldest Museum.

The museum in the city of Nara, the former capital of Japan, is said to be the oldest in the world. All the exhibits, too, are equally ancient, or rather more so, for, since its foundation in A. D. 756, no addition has been made to its collection!

Dr. Otto Kummel, who tells us about the queer old museum, is one of the few Europeans who have been permitted to visit it. Its doors are opened only once a year, when a special committee inspects the collection. The museum contains about three thousand articles, which are said to be the most beautiful specimens of decorative work ever done by the human hand. Where the greater part of these treasures came from, nobody knows. Some came from China, others from Korea, but most of them appear to have been brought from a greater distance. They have been in their present home for more than eleven centuries, so it is no wonder that their origin is unknown!—Chatterbox.

QUEER THINGS IN KOREA

STREET SCENE IN SEOUL

TO THE natives of Korea, the world is populous with active and malevolent beings who are ready at any moment to fall upon them in wrath, according to a statement made by Dr. I. M. Casanowicz, assistant curator of old world archeology of the United States National museum, concerning the paraphernalia of a Korean sorceress now deposited in the museum collections.

Doctor Casanowicz says the Koreans believe that these beings or spirits haunt every tree, mountain and watercourse; are on every roof, fireplace and beam, and infest even their chimneys, living rooms and kitchens; that they beset them at home and waylay them when abroad. They seem to be everywhere at all times and make their lives miserable. To their influence the Koreans attribute every ill, all bad luck, official malevolence, loss of power or position, and especially sickness; demons, consisting of self-existent malicious spirits and spirits of departed impoverished persons who died in distress, and spirits whose natures are partly kindly, which include the ghosts of prosperous and good people, but even the latter appear to be easily offended and extraordinarily capricious.

Two Classes of Sorcerers.

To cope with these two forms of spirits and be assured of a little peace and quiet, the Koreans have two classes of sorcerers, or, as they call them, "shamans;" the Pansu and the Mutang. Both classes are mediators between the people and the spirits, but they bear little relation to each other. The former are "fortune-tellers," and the latter, the "deceiving crowd," or "bad lot." In this connection, Doctor Casanowicz said:

"The office of the Pansu is restricted to blind men, perhaps owing to the common belief among primitive peoples that those who have been deprived of physical sight have been given an inner spiritual vision. The Mutang is always a woman, generally from the lower classes and of bad repute, and her calling is considered the very lowest in the social scale. While the Pansu is, as it were, born or made by dint of his loss of eyesight, the Mutang enters upon her office in consequence of a 'supernatural call,' consisting in the assurance of demoniacal possession, the demon being supposed to have become her double and to have superimposed his personality upon hers. The 'possession' is often accompanied by hysteria and patheological symptoms. The spirit may seize any woman, maid or wife, rich or poor, plebeian or patrician, and compel her to serve him, and on receiving the 'call of the spirit' a woman will break every tie of custom and relationship, leave home and family to become henceforth a social outcast, so that she is not even allowed to live within the city walls. But notwithstanding her low social status, her services are in constant demand.

"In traveling through the country, the Mutang or sorceress is constantly to be seen going through the various musical and dancing performances in the midst of a crowd in front of a house where there is sickness. And at the close of the nineteenth century the fees annually paid in Korea to the sorcerers were estimated at $750,000.

Pansu Is Master of Spirits.

"The Pansu acts as master of the spirits, having gained by his potent formula and ritual an ascendancy over them. By his spells he can direct them. The Mutang is supposed to be able to influence them with her friendship with them. She has to pray to them and coax them to go. By her performances she puts herself en rapport with the spirits and is able to ascertain their will and to name the ransom for which they will release the victim who is under torment.

"More varied than the functions of the Pansu are the pacifications and propitiations, called kauts or kuts, performed by the Mutang. The kaut may be carried out either at the house of the patient or at the home of the Mutang, or at some shrine or temple, called tang, dedicated to some spirits, which are seen on the hillsides in Korea. If, as is occasionally the case, the Mutang belongs to a noble family, she is allowed by her family to ply her trade only in her own house. Those who require her services send the required fee and necessary offerings, and the ceremony is performed by the Mutang in her own house or at the tang.

"Her equipment consists of a number of dresses, some of them very costly; a drum shaped like an hourglass, about four feet high; copper cymbals; a copper gong; a copper rod with small bells or tinklers suspended from it by copper chains; a pair of telescoping baskets; strips of silk and paper banners which float around her as she dances; fans, umbrellas; wands and images of men and animals."

The paraphernalia of the sorceress or exorcist was acquired for the United States National museum through the agency of the late W. W. Rockhill, formerly envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to China, and is now exhibited in the section of historic religions in the older building of the museum.

Healing the Sick.

"The service of the Mutang most in demand is the healing of the sick," continued Doctor Casanowicz. "If a sick man believes that his distemper has been caused by a spirit, he sends to the Mutang to describe the symptoms and learn what spirit is doing mischief. The Mutang may declare the name of the spirit without going to the patient's house, or may say that she must see the patient first. On retaining her fee she names a 'fortunate' day for the ceremony, which will be performed either at her house or shrine or at the patient's house, according to the seriousness of the ailment and the fee he can pay.

"The performance of a certain sorceress reported took place before the open door of the sick man's house, in an inclosed space within which were tables laden with food and delicacies. Three old women accompanied the Mutang, two of them beating large hourglass-shaped drums, while the third clashed symbols. The sorceress faced them, dressed in rose-pink silk and a gauze robe of buff, its sleeves trailing on the ground. Her hair was decorated with strips of white paper and a curious cap of buff gauze with red patches. Over her left shoulder she carried a brightly painted stick supporting a gong upon which she beat with another stick, executing at the same time a slow, rhythmic movement accompanied by a chant. Every now and then one of the ancient drummers gathered pieces of food and, scattering them to the four winds for the spirits to eat, invoked them by saying: 'Do not trouble this house any more, and we will again appease you by offerings.' The exorcism lasted from two in the afternoon until four the next morning, when after fourteen hours of treatment the patient began to recover. It is believed by another writer, however, that all the gestures and whirling, and the noise of the drums and cymbals, must in some cases actually 'kill' instead of 'cure.'"

Her Boast.

"She's always bragging about her husband."

"What does she say?"

"She says he's the biggest chump in town."—Detroit Free Press.

Promises That May Be Broken

By LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

I know that the grass, the leaves, will not tell;
I'm sure the wind, precious rover,
Will carry his secret so safely and well
That no being shall ever discover
One little word of the many that fell
From the eager lips of my lover.

Because a man suns himself in a woman's presence, then smiles and rides away, she shouldn't allow the conviction to settle in her mind that she possesses no attraction for him. It may be that she has too much attraction and the man flees for safety lest he should in a moment of enthusiasm ask her to be his wife. If he is a man of honor, he knows love and marriage should be the outcome of all courtship. He may realize that the one grand passion of a man's life has come to him. But as to marriage, that is denied him, because he is bound by an old promise not to wed.

Some men consider promises to be like glass, easily broken. Other men believed them to be sacred. An instance of this kind made a great impression upon my mind. A young man whom I knew asked me for an introduction to a beautiful girl friend. I was secretly delighted because the lovely girl in question had been admiring the young man, declaring him to be the noblest looking man she had met. She declared roguishly that if she ever married she hoped her husband would be a man of that type. The attraction seemed mutual.

After a few calls, the young man left the city abruptly, writing ther that she would never see him again, for the reason that he was beginning to care for her. The same mail bag brought me a letter from the young man, in which he poured out his life's story. He said he had fallen deeply in love with the girl to whom I had introduced him. But as marriage was out of the question with him, it was best that they should part. He wrote me of a sweetheart whom he had had in his early youth. The girl had taken a severe cold, because he had kept her too long at the gate saying good night. They were betrothed. Their marriage was soon to take place. On her deathbed she had enacted a promise of him that he would never marry. The pledge was given under the intense excitement of the moment. It gripped him with its hold during all his after life. He feared a blight would fall upon him if he broke his promise. He had had no warning that he was to meet and love another in the after years.

A promise where there is no tie is better broken than kept when it is of the kind cited. People should be careful as to the promises they make. And they should think them over, first, judiciously.

Poultry Pointers

Poultry love the out-of-doors. Turn them loose when the weather is nice and they will gain in vigor.

Some fowls are more thrifty than others, and it pays to sort out, pick over and work up the flock.

The mistake is too often made of wintering more hens than the quarters warrant. Nothing on the farm is more profitable than hens, provided their house is large enough to accommodate them without crowding.

Success is a thing of many details. Not one of these small matters can be left out or neglected and the fowls not suffer for it.

Feed according to age. Young birds use the food given them in making flesh and size of body. Grown-up hens take it for egg production; while old ones are more apt to turn everything to fat.

Alfalfa meal helps fill the winter eggbasket; it takes the place of green food to a large extent, and is very rich in protein.

Vigor and excess of flesh do not go together with poultry. We want good, strong, thrifty chicks later; these come only from breeding stock not too fat.

There are egg breeds and meat breeds, but none that excel in both.

While the beginner need not necessarily be an expert, he must be more or less expert to succeed.

Have a system. Having everything convenient is a saving of labor and a preventive of discouragements.

Changes Shoes Hourly.

Arrested at four o'clock in the morning because he had a pair of shoes attached to his belt, Ernest Cummins, forty-five, told an interesting story when arraigned in Magistrate Fugassi's court in Pittsburgh. Asked to explain why he wore a pair of shoes and carried another pair, Cummins said he had six toes on each foot and it was necessary for him to change shoes every hour or else he could not walk.

"I'm from Missouri," said the magistrate.

"I'll show you," Cummins retorted, and he did. He had six toes. Then he showed the magistrate his right hand. There he had five fingers and a thumb. His left hand has only four fingers and a thumb, the regular number, but one finger was cut off in an accident.

Loss by Floods in United States.

During the year 1915 the losses due to flood waters throughout the United States aggregated nearly twenty-one million dollars. Of this amount more than half was sustained by the agricultural interests of the country.

Ten-Year-Old Girl Original Of Indian Head on Pennies Used for Nearly a Century

In 1835 the government of the United States, made an offer of $1,000 for the most acceptable design to be placed upon the new cent coin soon to be issued. Some Indian chiefs traveled from the Northwest to Washington to visit the Great Father. Andrew Jackson occupied the executive chair and Martin Van Buren was vice president. These Indians journeyed to Philadelphia to inspect the mint, whose chief engraver was James Barton Longacre, who invited them to his house, where, to celebrate the event, a distinguished company was assembled to welcome them.

The engraver's daughter, Sarah, aged ten, greatly enjoyed the visit or her father's guests, and during the evening, to please her, one of the chiefs took his feathered helmet and war-bonnet and placed it on her head. In the company was an artist, who immediately sketched her and handed the picture to her father. Mr. Longacre, knowing of the competition for a likeness to go upon the cent projected, under the inspiration of the hour, resolved to contend for the prize offered by the government. To his delight the officials accepted it, and the face of his daughter appeared upon the coin, which was circulated about the nation for nearly a century. It is said that there were more than 100 competitors for the prize.

Savage and civilized life was thus intermingled in the American face and the Indian headgear. The face of Sarah Longacre has gone into more hands, more pockets, more homes, more stores, more banks, more schools; yes, more churches than any other coin in the United States, if not in the world.

Lot of Professor Is Hard, College Survey Discloses.

One of the more prominent eastern colleges has been conducting a survey of itself. It finds the students living in magnificent dormitories and palatial fraternity houses, some of which are heavily endowed, going to classes in their own automobiles and possessing more changes of raiment than Samson lost by his ill-advised bet to the Philistine youths.

The survey was pleasant until it looked into the homes of the professors. There it found scholars of Greek and Latin, profound teachers of physics, cranking up clothes wringers and putting bluing in the family washtubs.

The average pay of professors in this particular college is considered high, but it is less than a good bartender can command. The unctuous head waiter at a fashionable restaurant makes considerably more.

The professor is another "man with a white collar."

WOMAN NOW IN PERFECT HEALTH

What Came From Reading a Pinkham Advertisement.

Paterson, N. J. — "I thank you for the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies as they have made me well and healthy. Sometime ago I felt so run down, had pains in my back and side, was very irregular, tired, nervous, had such bad dreams, did not feel like eating and had short breath. I read your advertisement in the newspapers and decided to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It worked from the first bottle, so I took a second and a third, also a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier, and now I am just as well as any other woman. I advise every woman, single or married, who is troubled with any of the aforesaid ailments, to try your wonderful Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and I am sure they will help her to get rid of her troubles as they did me." — Mrs. ELSIE J. VAN DER SANDE, 36 No. York St., Paterson, N. J.

Sure! High Heels Cause Corns But Who Cares Now

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn or callus the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, lifts off with the fingers.

Freezone dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn or callus without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but will positively rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or hardened callus. If your druggist hasn't any freezone he can get it at any wholesale drug house for you. —Adv.

NO MORE WEAK KIDNEYS, BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM

New Specific Soon to be Brought to town, Says Letter:

Dear Mr. Editor:—Just lately, I am told and beg to inform your readers, that the famous Dr. Pierce, of whose medicines and Surgical Institution in Buffalo, New York, we have heard for years, has added to his popularity by assenting to put before the American people, "An-Uric." This prescription is adapted especially for kidney complaints and diseases arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, congestion of the kidneys, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine and urinary troubles. The physcians and specialists at Dr. Pierce's great Institution have thoroughly tested this prescription and have been with one accord successful in eradicating these troubles, and in most cases absolutely curing the diseased kidneys.

Patients having once used "An-Uric" at the Institution have repeatedly sent back for more. Such a demand has been created that Doctor Pierce has decided to put "An-Uric" in the drug stores of this country, in a ready-to-use form. It will be their own fault if the public does not take advantage of this wonderful remedy.

I know of one or two leading druggists here who have managed to procure a supply of "An-Uric" for their anxious customers in and around this locality.

I have used "An-Uric" and believe it to be the greatest of kidney medicines and I have tried many. A few doses will convince, I feel certain.

A FIRM BELIEVER.

Ate 'Em All Herself.

A girl was required to write a brief sketch of Queen Elizabeth. Her paper contained this sentence:

"Elizabeth was so dishonest that she stole her soldiers' food."

The teacher was puzzled, and called the girl.

"Where did you get that notion?"

"Why, that's what it says in the history."

The book was sent for, and the passage was found. It read:

"Elizabeth was so parsimonious that she even pinched her soldiers' rations."

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups. —Adv.

Mohammedan Law Barred.

Mohammedan law does not run in England was decided by the lord chief justice recently. Doctor Mir-Auwaruddin, a Mohammedan, and a member of the English bar, married in 1913, an English lady named Ruby Hood. After some time they separated, and the lady lived apart from her husband. The latter then began proceedings and obtained an order for restitution of conjugal rights, but this was not complied with, and proceedings for divorce were then begun by the wife, but were dismissed. Now, according to Mohammedan law, if the husband gives his wife a "writing of divorcement," or as it is called "Talak," this constitutes a divorce. Mir-Auwarudding did this and then applied for a marriage license to enable him to marry again. This was refused, and the lord chief Justice sitting with Justices Darling and Bray, upheld the refusal on the ground that as the applicant was married in England under the English law, to an English lady, the original marriage held good, and must be dissolved in an English court of law. The religious law of the applicant was not recognized.

Effect of Auto on Agriculture.

Every time an automobile displaces a horse five acres of land are added to the agricultural area of the country. Among the economic influences of the motor car, this is one phase that is commonly overlooked. There are about 26,000,000 horses in the United States and each horse consumes six to seven tons of food a year. It is easily figured that an average of five acres is required to furnish food for each horse. This means a total of 130,000,000 acres of land devoted to pastures and raising hay—over 200,000 square miles. This means land nearly five times as big as Ohio, or an area larger than Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, devoted to feeding horses instead of people. Of course, the releasing of all this area from pasture uses and making it available for the support of population will be a tremendous economic gain.

ORATOR'S DECLINE AND FALL

"Spellbinder" Now Simply Makes the Voters Tired, and They Will Not Have Him.

The campaign curtain has been rung down, says the Kansas City Star, on no sadder fact—from some points of view, at least—than that the stump orator has not lived up to his old-time tradition. Or if he has lived up to it the public has declined to live up to it with him. Not to evade the fact, or to attempt to soften it, the intelligent electorate, the free American voter, or whatever else the citizenry is called in presidential years, has yawned openly in the face of the spellbinder and turned away to see what was on at the movie show.

It has been a shock to the political managers. The campaign industry has had no such setback since the introduction of reading into the scheme of popular education. It used to be that anybody who had ever been a member of the legislature, who had sat on the bench, held a county office or had done or was supposed to have done anything that would serve as an excuse for prefixing the title of "Hon." to his name—it used to be that any such male person with well-developed lungs and a set of gestures could be billed in a political campaign and bring out the entire countryside. About all such an orator needed, in addition to the title alluded to, was a "statesman" coat, an untiring voice, a string of statistics and what was known as a "fund" of anecdote. This "fund" was generally overdrawn at the bank of originality and most of the drafts on it went to ignominious protest.

The "intelligent audience"—the most intelligent audience the old-time orator ever had the pleasure of addressing—has taken him at his word and has rather distanced him in intelligence and information on his own subject. It has come to be more and more like the audience at the theater which has paid for its seats—it demands the best or will go elsewhere to find it. The mere "Hons" no longer draw. Unless a topliner is produced the intelligent audience shows its intelligence by staying away from the hall.

It is only fair to say that the intelligent campaign manager has kept pace with the intelligent audience. He was quick with the book when he saw the second-rate oratory stuff was beginning to pall. That is why printer's ink has so enormously increased in use in this campaign. These astute gentlemen have discovered that the intelligent audience takes the paper at home. The "and now my friends" orators never saw a sadder day than when they discovered it.

Bean Worse Than Alcohol.

That firewater isn't the only thing that will cause a wild, unsophisticated Indian of the American plains to rear up on his toes, become indifferent to bulldogs and see pink elephants with wings, is the declaration of Earl B. Putt, a chemist, who is endeavoring to have the government place a ban on the sale of the Mexican Peyota bean to Indians on the South Dakota reservations.

It is reported that the Indians, having discovered the exceptional qualities of this brand of bean, have been using large quantities of it and make a brew from it which excels in effect any product of the paleface. The authorities do not know whether or not the bean can be barred from the reservations under the Harrison antifirewater act, but they are going to see what can be done about it.

CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" better than calomel and can not salivate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel. It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.—Adv.

CHARGE FULL RENT FOR CARS

IN the opinion of W. R. Scott, General Manager of the Southern Pacific Railroad, as expressed to the Railway-Age Gazette, the chief causes of car shortage are loss of time in loading and unloading and neglect to load cars to full capacity.

The worst trouble is the fact that railroads permit shippers to use cars as warehouses at merely nominal rent, and in case of export shipments at no rent at all.

This practice could be stopped if the railroads would charge the full rental value of cars, in the form of demurrage, before they begin and after they finish a trip.

If a loaded car takes ten days to make a trip and is then held up by the shipper for a day 10 per cent might be added to the freight bill.

At the most the free time should be twenty-four hours, for, as Mr. Scott says, a car of coal can be loaded in a few minutes and, as most coal cars have hopper bottoms, they can be unloaded as quickly.

The same statement applies to tank cars, lumber cars and those used for many bulk shipments. When a wagon drives up to a warehouse, it is immediately loaded or unloaded; why not a freight car?

If free time were reduced to the period reasonably necessary and if demurrage were charged at the rate of the full earning power of the car, based on the average day's run, there would be a change.

St. Patrick Luncheon

Mrs. C. E. Day and Mrs. Walter Stray were hostesses at a one o'clock dinner, Wednesday, to the members of the Pundita Circle.

The home of Mrs. Stray in the Willows, which was the scene of the delightful occasion, was decorated in keeping with the St. Patrick season.

After due attention had been given to the delicious luncheon, an agreeable hour was spent in retailing Irish jokes and stories and in singing songs of Old Erin.

The subject of the afternoon meeting was Domestic Science, and an interesting talk on "Milk" was given by Miss May Forbes; a paper on "Salt" read by Mrs. W. Nelson, and the "Process of Making Sugar" by Mrs. Day.

The affair was another of the many delightful times which the ladies of the Pundita enjoy together.

The monthly meeting of the S. S. board will be held Wednesday evening after the devotional service.

Grangers Urge Growers to Sign Up

Orchard City Grange held its regular meeting Tuesday night and despite the condition of the weather there was a good attendance. Several matters of importance were presented, among which was a resolution introduced by the chairman of the Fruits and Markets committee and which was unanimously endorsed by the grange.

Believing that the organization of the prune and apricot growers will be of far reaching benefit and is the most important matter before the people of the county at this time,

We, the members of the Orchard City Grange, not only advise but we urge every grower of prunes and apricots to sign up at once. By so doing you will not only assure its success, but will remove the uncertainty of when to sell, and we believe will give the growers greater prosperity.

Eighty-five per cent of the members of this grange who are growers have shown their faith by joining the organization, and pledge their efforts in getting the remaining fifteen per cent.

A committee of three members was appointed by the master to serve with a like committee from other granges of the county to take up the matter of beautifying our highways.

Attention was drawn by the Co-operative committee to the automobile parade of prune and apricot growers interested in the organization, to take place on Blossom Day. Other interesting reports were made by the rest of the committees.

During the lecture hour, Messrs. V. J. La Motte and Ben Blow of the Good Roads committee spoke in favor of the bond issue, Mr. Blow accompanying his talk with stereopticon views.

A vote of thanks was given the speakers for the interesting way in which they presented the subject.
